Re: Your May 1, 2019 letter

Dear Ms. Simmons:

The demand in your May 1, 2019 letter to a group of academics and practitioners associated with the web site Real Your Brain on Porn that they "[p]lain from disparagement and defamation of YOUR BRAIN ON PORN and its principal and associates" is motivated for numerous reasons.

To the extent you are using disparagement to mean criticism or belittlement, as it is indistinctly defined, the request is improper. Criticism is protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution in the absence of both a provably false statement of fact about the person who claims he was injured, and the requisite level of fault, such as negligence or malice.

But, even if you are using disparagement to refer to a legal test such as commercial disparagement, there is no basis to suggest that Real Your Brain on Porn has ever disparaged Your Brain on Porn, in principal, Mr. Gary Wilson, or his associates. First, the website does not mention Your Brain on Porn except in a disclaimer on the bottom of page of the website that states, "This web page has no relationship with yourbrainporn.com." Nor does the website ever mention Mr. Wilson or his associates. To prevail on a claim of disparagement, however, a plaintiff generally needs to show that there is both a false or misleading statement and that it specifically refers to the plaintiff. See, e.g., Harjoard Casualty Ins. Co. v. S. of P. of D. Insurance, 59 Cal.4th 277, 292-94 (2014). Because Real Your Brain on Porn does not refer to Your Brain on Porn (except in the no relationship disclaimer), Mr. Wilson, or his associates or make any false statements about them, there is no basis for you to demand that the publisher of the website or anyone associated with it refrain from disparagement of Your Brain on Porn, Mr. Wilson, or his

An excellent example of how activists lie about science. Here, she carves a screen shot of a correlation, where the rest of the study (the whole point of the model) was showing porn did not cause aggression. They just lie when they don't like science, and so transparently!

So you don't understand stats either. You are looking at baseline correlation. Those are not longitudinal data that can possibly comment on cause (i.e., growth portion of the model). You publicly embarrassed yourself by trying to insult scientists & misunderstanding correlation.

With the controls omitted from the analysis, we observed a significant change in pornography use over time in both latent classes. While a slight increase was observed in adolescents who reported no or marginal levels of sexual aggression, those who reported substantial, although not consistent, sexual aggressiveness were characterized by a decrease in the frequency of pornography use. When considered together with the findings obtained with the controls included, these results do not corroborate a positive dynamic association between male adolescents' pornography use and sexual aggressiveness.

RESEARCH

Science is the practice of falsifying models using systematic observations. In psychology and related sciences, these models are theories about why a person or group engages in a behavior(s). Falsification is a high threshold for models: If any prediction of a model is not supported, the entire model is discarded. While study results that are consistent with a model prediction increase our confidence that the one model prediction is supported, every single prediction of the model must hold true for the model to be considered supported. Thus, the most important studies are studies that falsify predictions of a model. Finally, a model is never "proven", because a model prediction could always be falsified by the next study. Models are "supported" or "falsified". This literature (below) represents some of the important model falsifications that have occurred in sex film science.

Much contemporary debate about pornography centers on its role in portraying and perpetuating gender inequality. This article compares traditional gendered attitudes between cisgender men attending the Adult Entertainment Expo (n = 294) and a random sample of male respondents from the 2016 General Social Survey (GSS), a U.S. representative survey of general attitudes and beliefs collected every two years (n = 863). Our survey borrowed questions from the GSS to measure attitudes about gender equality across four dimensions: (1) working mothers, (2) women in politics, (3) traditional gender roles in the family, and (4)

This:
is format of a relative link on yourbrainonporn.com. Crawler tried to follow. No doubt Wilson, sole author, did not intend to upload his porn, so just text. Hundreds of porn links between 2016/2017 on "young Mormons". None recent, could not be "hacker".

A famous newscaster made the EXACT SAME hacker claim being made by yourbrainonporn:
vox.com/policy-and-pol...
They found there was no hacker. She apologized.
Will Wilson apologize to people, esp LDS women, he tricked to think he's not supporting porn? Or are anti-porn mere sheep?

Where is the rest of the archived site? Why am I getting broken or gray images on a site?

Broken images occur when the images are not available on our servers. Usually this means that we did not archive them.

You can tell if the image or link you are looking for is in the Wayback Machine by entering the image or link's URL into the Wayback Machine search box. Whatever archives we have are viewable in the Wayback Machine.

The best way to see all the files we have archived of the site is:
http://web.archive.org/\*/\*www.yoursite.com/\*

"How did the stalkers get the URLs to group together on the first 3 pages (out of 2000 pages of YBOP URLs)?
They put double slashes"
So dumb 🤡
1) Links were before this group even existed 2016/2017
2) Relative links have exactly that appearance as the crawler attempts to follow

"Wayback takes a snapshot of archived pages not 404 pages."
Ignorant, not how it works.
Crawlers try to follow all links, external and relative. The relative "Mormon" porn links were on pages & accurately archived, as documented by computer engineer who will verify to any media.

Real Your Brain on Porn @BrainOnPorn · Aug 22

"Any stalker can create fake URLs for any website and place it in the WayBack Machine Archive."
Lies.
1) Links are 2016 and 2017, cannot backdate
2) Cannot recreate his example, no one can because he is site editor
3) Engineer verified relative links presence
4) Focused content

" Since the URLs were never on YBOP & never existed, the WayBack machine URLs go nowhere."

That is ignorant. The URLs are relative. This means crawler found them on site, & looked for page to archive. All point to accidentally exposing his own habit on

No one else is backing him up for a reason: he's just been outed for hypocrisy. Many anti-porn orgs are heavily LDS. If @FightTheNewDrug actually believes porn leads to violence, they would drop him or "risk" their young women.

"The 3 pgs of fake URLs are "porn" URLs inserted by a hacker."

This is not possible. A computer engineer already documented. He has done much worse, sharing soon, but his "Mormon" porn habit is in a public database from 2016 and 2017 that cannot be faked. LDS young women beware.

In 2016 and 2017 hundreds of relative links all to Mormon porn, mostly "young" and "shaved" were on youbrainonporn. they were indexed at that time. Presumably the mistake was caught and they are gone by 2018 crawlers. These cannot be backdated.

The links cannot be inserted manually, and cannot be backdated. He got caught with Mormon porn text. @GailDines @FightTheNewDrug & others can address it now or to media later. We will make our computer engineer available to verify everything with a complete site scrape for media.

We support anyone viewing material consensually, so the content is not the main objection: years of shaming others for the exact same behavior is a problem. @sash1234 is supportive, while he violates his own & appears on multiple white supremacist shows, now sending death threats.

It turns out an anti-porn website is hosting a bunch of Mormon porn text. He claims it was an "optical illusion" and then a conspiracy by us, somehow, from 2016 and 2017 when the porn was on his website. Here's the truth:

How is it fabrication? @YourBrainOnPorn When the website itself shares it.

Optical illusion?
