What do you think about your brain on porn movement?

Nicole Prause, worked at University of California, Los Angeles
Answered Mar 3, 2018

YourBrainOnPorn is run by someone with no scientific training with many warnings online that his science is fake. The author claims to have been a “professor in Biology”. In reality, he was supposed to be an undergrad instructor, not a professor, for a lab section at Southern Oregon University. He was fired without pay immediately before completing even a quarter (attached). Further, his TEDx talk carries a fraud warning (attached). He is an employee of the anti-pornography organization The Reward Foundation (attached), which is where the proceeds of his book sales go (his website claims “donated to charity”, but it directly profits him).

The website is simply an attempt to profit from the worries of men (attached ad) that have existed for decades and does not reflect consensus by actual sexual neuroscientists (Data do not support sex as addictive). This movement has been documented by scientists to promote misogyny, such as encouraging men to use women without their consent to “test” their erections.

One way to sell products is to create fear, and that is clearly what that person is attempting to do. Don’t fall for it.

In Quora log Prause mentions YBOP many times. <https://www.quora.com/profile/Nicole-Prause/log>. A few examples:

November, 2016 - From an online debate under a podcast about porn addiction (where Prause defamed the guests):

OMG, this is directly from Gary Wilson's website:
<http://www.yourbrainonporn.com/book/export/html/103>

Dan, I am sorry, but you have been played by these people, big time.

Yep, copy+paste by Gary Wilson from his website:
<http://www.yourbrainonporn.com/book/export/html/103>

Dan, I don't blame you for this, they have been doing it for years, but you do need to clean it up for your listeners. This is not fair to them to have stalkers and activists with no college degree trying to claim actual neuroscience by copy+pasting exclusively from their own activist websites.

This is Gary Wilson who owns <http://www.yourbrainonporn.com>, married to Marnia Robinson who owns <http://www.pornstudycritiques.com> Notice those are the only links provided.

Prause on Twitter re Wilson
Tweets:

Prause created two “infographics” in 2016, naming Gary Wilson and YBOP, which she has tweeted dozens of times. The first infographic is on Prause’s Amazon website, and says “Gary Wilson, obsessed blogger, yourbrainonporn.com”: <https://s3-us-west-1.amazonaws.com/weilerdefamation/SexismInNeuroscience.jpg> - (infographic also mentions Marnia Robinson, Don Hilton). A close-up of one tweet from 2016:

@NicoleRPrause would you disagree with the endless data that shows how harmful porn is to women?

The second Infographic lists www.yourbrainonporn.com at the bottom (as a source of “bad information”). Note: if you enlarge it, you’ll see that it’s huge. Link to Prause Amazon page featuring it - <https://s3-us-west-1.amazonaws.com/liberos.media/EvaluatingInformationAboutSexFilms.png>

Prause has tweeted it dozens of times. A tweet from 2016 where Prause specifically responds to a link to YBOP:

Replying to @mackle_poor @DrDavidLey

That website has been debunked hundreds of times by many science groups. Attached and linked are guides to help you be a better critical consumer of information about sex films. tandfonline.com/eprint/sfKzk3k ...

This next one is from 2016, with Prause saying her name is on YBOP 1,070 times (she doesn't mention that almost all of the instances are on the pages documenting her extensive defamation and harassment).
